A LITTLE HISTORY TRIBUTE:

Ford Motor Company

After a few trials building cars and companies, in 1903, Henry Ford established the Ford Motor Company. Ford introduced the Model T in October of 1908, and for several years, the company posted 100 percent gains.

However, more than for his profits, Ford became renowned for his revolutionary vision: the manufacture of an inexpensive automobile made by skilled workers who earn steady wages.

In 1914, he sponsored the development of the moving assembly line technique of mass production. Simultaneously, he introduced the $5-per-day wage ($110 in 2011) as a method of keeping the best workers loyal to his company. Simple to drive and cheap to repair, half of all cars in America in 1918 were Model T's.

Philosophy, Philanthropy and Anti-Semitism

From a social perspective, Henry Ford's was marked by seemingly contradictory viewpoints. In business, Ford offered profit sharing to select employees who stayed with the company for six months and, most important, who conducted their lives in a respectable manner.

The company's "Social Department" looked into an employee's drinking, gambling and otherwise uncouth activities to determine eligibility for participation. Ford was also an ardent pacifist and opposed World War I, even funding a peace ship to Europe.

Later, in 1936, Ford and his family established the Ford Foundation to provide ongoing grants for research, education and development. But despite these philanthropic leanings, Ford was also a committed anti-Semite, going as far as to support a weekly newspaper, The Dearborn Independent, which furthered such views. Henry Ford died of a cerebral hemorrhage on April 7, 1947, at the age of 83, near his Dearborn estate, Fair Lane. Ford, considered one of America's leading businessmen, is credited today for helping to build America's economy during the nation's vulnerable early years. His legacy will live on for decades to come.

Why general tire and wheel maintenance is crucial

As a car, van, SUV or light truck owner, it seems the list of things you should do regularly to keep your vehicle running efficiently and safely gets longer every year.

Here are four tips that will not only save you money but also might even save a life.

We're talking about tire maintenance — and not just about switching winter tires for all-season rubber tires and vice versa. For your tires, just as other areas of your car, regular and thorough maintenance is important. Specifically, wheel alignment, wheel balance, tire rotation, tire air pressure and the general condition of each tire — including the spare in the trunk.

Proper wheel alignment is critical to general vehicle safety. If your wheels are not properly aligned, your tires will wear unevenly and this will cause them to wear out sooner.

Improper wheel alignment will also cause your vehicle to pull to the right or left under certain circumstances. Improper wheel balance will also cause a vehicle to react in many of the same ways.

Uneven tire balance will cause any vehicle — or even your trailer — to “vibrate” going down the road, and it may “pull” to the left or right. The result will be uneven wear on the tires, making them, ultimately, unsafe.

Rotating your tires is quite simple yet very important, and something most of us forget to do. Consider rotating your tires approximately every six months at TF Auto; move front tires to the back, and back tires to the front. While you're at it, why not balance them, too?

Improperly inflated tires will affect your engine's performance and your gas mileage, and can even cause your tires to wear unevenly. Most tires have the (maximum) inflation pressures stamped on the side. Required pressures are also shown in your vehicle manual and the driver's side door jamb.

At the very least, get into the habit of visually checking your tires on a daily basis for cracks, blistering and even embedded sharp objects.

Weekend Auto Crossword Puzzle!

Looking to kill some time before the weekend officially starts? Then try taking on this car-shaped, auto-related crossword puzzle and see how many words you can find!

Just for Laughs

A blonde was trying to sell her old car but was having a lot of problems because the car had 250,000 miles on it. One day she told her problem to a brunette that she worked with. The brunette told her: "There is a possibility to make the car easier to sell, but it's not legal."

"That doesn't matter," replied the blonde, "if I only can sell the car."

"Okay," said the brunette. "Here is the address of a friend of mine. He owns a car repair shop. Tell him I sent you and he will turn the counter in your car back to 50,000 miles.

Then it should not be a problem to sell your car anymore." The following weekend, the blonde made the trip to the mechanic. About one month after that, the brunette asked the blonde: "Did you sell your car?"

"No," replied the blonde, "why should I? It only has 50,000 miles on it."

A Word from the Editor

Finally some warm weather!!!

If the rain and the sun work together we could be in for a very nice green lush summer.

But still lots of rain that is ok we will enjoy a nice green summer not a dry one and loss a few lawns like last year.

It was nice to see 13 members out for the cruise to Pinecroft.

The ride was enjoyable and the food was really good home made cooking.

I hear we had a good show at the NCMC Car Show at Ed Learn Ford.

Was unable to attend myself but was filled in by Bruce.
